Embroidered Robes

On Monday, April 6, we shall place on sale

450 Swiss Embroldered Robes at less than 50 cts. on the dollar.

EACH ROBE CONTAINS

41/2 yards White Flouncing. 41/2 yards Edging, 40 inches wide. 12 yards Plain Material (Swiss).

They would be cheap at $8, but we shall sell them at ## $3.98 per Robe.

Then we have better qualities in these robes, some at $4.48, $4.98, $5.48 and so on, the difference being that the material is fluer and embroilery handsomer than that in the cheaper ones. We think they are worth as much again as we are asking for them.

THE BLACKLISTED PLAYERS.

Hugh Burns Should Be Given a Chance-Hines Signed With the Providence -- The Game To-day. Providence-Nationals to-day 4:15 p. m. How dld you enjoy the game yesterday Paul Hines was reserved last year by the Providence Club, but declined to sign until yesterday. It is now settled that he will play the coming season with his old club. The Providence Club all went to see Haverly's Minstrels last night.

President Appleton of the Metropolitan Club leaves to night with his wife for Fortress Monico, where they will remain a jew days. He will wait to see the Na-tionals win their game this evening before going.

Big-hearted, big-bodied Hughey Burns, the pitcher, is in the city. Hughey is one first-class pitcher, is obliged to remain ide. of the blacklisted players, and though a first-class pitcher, is obliged to remain idie. He was reserved last year by the Cleveland Club, though not signed, and declining to play there, accepted an engagement from the Chicago Unions. While the sympathics of the baseball public are onlisted for Dunlay, Shaeffer and others, Burns seems to be forgotten, probably because he has not a Lucas behind him. If Dunlap and the others are reinstated, as they certainly should be, then by all the laws of equity and fairness flughey Burns should be too. Breaking the reserve rule is a very light offense for which to take away a man's break and butter, and they have no right to make fish of one and fowl of the other. It is hoped that baseball writers will take this matter up and insist that justice shall be done. Burns pitched for the Metropolitaus when they were first organized, and continued with them for several seasons. He is very nighly spoken of by President Appleton.

1t's a pity that the directors of the National Club could not take advantage of the public reservation outside of their fence. It would add considerably to the size of the park. Private individuals are allowed the use of such reservations, why not a

The weather to-day should bring out a large crowd at Capitel Park. The ground is a little soft and errors will be excusable. Moore has been so anxious to play well that he has not been able to do himself justice. There is no man on the nine who has more friends than Moore. The way he can wield the ash seems to inspire confi-dence when he goes to the bat.

If Barr keeps on he will be as great a terror to pitchers as Brouthers of the Bi-

RHEA'S "CAMILLE."

How It Compares With the Conceptions of Other Actresses.

I went to the matinee on Saturday last to see Rhea in Camille. It seems strange that Rhea, being a French woman, should have no more abandon. Intense and pathetic as she is at times, yet the transitions are too tame. Camille tells us of herself-"I am sick, nervous, impatient, fretfat, reckless, or, if gay, a gayety more fearful than tears," An impulsive, subtle, grace ful woman, full of magnetism and perfect abandon. Again, those who have read the story know that Camille was "pale, with deep, dark eyes and glossy black hatr."
Rhea does not look Comille, for she wears golden hatr. Again, all the magnetic, fascinating situations with Arasand that make Modjeska's Comille so pleasing are absent in the Camille of Rhea. Her costume in the first act is not in keeping with the charac-ter it suggests, the quiet, domestic woman alone.

The last act was by far more suggestive of

The last act was by far more suggestive of Camille, if we leave out the blonde hair. Her dress was very graceful and the make-up for the ravages of consumption fine. She looked very ill, indeed—spiritual ideal—purified—and she acted well.

I saw Fanny Davenport in Camille when ahe was stoutest in form. The part never suited her, and the last act approached the burlesque. Her costume was ugly, her hair short and most unbecomingly arranged, and to associate consumption with her was simply a farce. We longed for a magic wand to there and then change her into the rollicking Lady Gay Spanker, which suits her so well.

Clara Morria used to play Camille, and well, too. Poor Matilda Heron! Just be-fore her death I met her in New York, and well, too. Foor Matilida Heron: Just before her death I met her is New York, and in her wild, eccentric manner she told me how Clara had unlawfully played Camille, and all the trouble she had had.

The play of "Camille" was originally translated and adapted from the play by Alexandre Dumas, entitled "La Dame Aux Camelas." Miss Heron purchased the sole right to the play in Paris, where she was living. Coming back to America she determined to make it one of her "star" roles, and for the purpose of protection, having the sole right to it, she took out a copyright in 1856 on a dramatic composition or play, entitled "Camille," in the circk's office of the District Court for the Southern District of Ohio. Therefore, as she had compiled with the law, her title to the play was good. In 1873 she made a transfer of all her rights to the play for the consideration of one dollar in lawful money of the United States to W. Irving Blabop.

When Miss Heron was still owner of the lawful manner of the law of lear Merch determined.

of the United States to W. Irving Bishop.
When Miss Heron was still owner of the play, in 1873, and Clara Morris determined to play "Camille." Miss Heron gave her burnion Square. The permission was never renewed, but Clara continued to play it. When Heron's agent went to Miss Morris to collect the fees due for these performances, the husband of Clara Morris was so violent and made such threats that Miss Heron almost lost command over her very excitable nature, and had friends not controlled her there would have been serious trolled her there would have been serious trouble. "Camille" is one of the few plays that has held its own for twonty years and still keeps its hold upon the public, each actress being desirous to test her tal-ents in a part which so truly holds the syments in a part water.

MR. HENDRICKS TAKES A HAND. Indiana Statesmen and the Hilloris Senatorial Contest.

A new element in the Illinois Senatorial fight has developed in the interest shown by the Indiana statesmen in booming General Black's candidacy and inducing Colonel Morrison to retire from the fight. The explanation of the Indiana interest in the affairs of her sister State is that General Black's retirement from the Pension Office would, it is said, lead to the promotion of Deputy Commissioner McLean of Indiana to be Commissioner of Pensions.

This incentive has stirred up the Lodic

This incentive has stirred up the Indi-This incentive has stirred up the Indi-anians to an extent that may prove im-portant in so close a contest.

The delegation from the Illinois Legis-lature, which has spent some days in Washington, is about to return to Spring-field, well-satisfied with the results of the visit. There is a general feeling among Illinois Democrats in Washington that the talk of any other compromise candidate than Black is unfounded.

The Democratic fight now hinges on the

The Democratic fight now binges on the question as to whether Colonel Morrison abould or should not retire in favor of General Black. Sentiment on this question is divided. General Sparks, the Commis-sioner of the Land Office, is loyal to Morn and resists the efforts to supersed rison and resists the efforts to supersode him by another caudidate, unless he shall voluntarily retire. Many of the other Illi-nois Democrats are loud in their demand that Morrison should give way to a mere oppular man. One of the stories in circu-lation is that General Block has received a piedge of two Republican votes.

A JOURNALIST'S PUN. An Important Musical Question Decided.

The Washington representative of one of the great dailies occasionally imposes a cold-blooded pun upon an unoffending world. One of the latest efforts of this distinguished journalist will be photographed for the members of the new Gridiron Joan nalistic Club and framed.

Last night at a late hour the journal-istic punster was observed pensively scrutiistic punster was observed pensively scrutinizing a swinging sign, upon which was the legend, "Wagner, boot and shoemaker," "I was thinking," said the scribe, "that this furnishes an answer to one of the great musical questions of the day. If Wagner makes a boot that creaks, who can question that Wagner's is the music of the future?"
The neatly printed diagram which will accompany this joke will state that it can be read "the music of the future" or "the music of the foot, sure." THERE are many humbugs in the market, but a genuine pain-eradicator is Salvation Oil. Twenty-five cents.

Adam Forepaugh last season received late in the fall and through the English port at Montreal, a tremendous Bengal tiger, which had been captured only a few months previous. The natives in Bengal state that be had destroyed and devoured fifty or more people, and two entire families who resided near his native jungle. He seemed to bear a charmed life and could be exterminated with neither spear nor bulled. He was finally caught in a huge trap. be exterminated with neither spear nor bullet. He was finally caught in a huze trap, bound with ropes and throngs and forced into a strong cage, in which he was imported and sold to Mr. Forepaugh. Greater reason is apparent that the stories told are truthful, for since confined in the menageric among other tigers of a less fierce aspect, he has tern the arms and shoulders
